whose hands, we have been playing the dupes, so many years of our lives, before we could get the chance to find out their phantasmal and delusional character.

After all that conversation with my Supernal brother, we parted. I came over to the jetty, together with the men accompanying me, where we had not long to wait for the ferry launch to arrive; but when the. ferry came, I seemed suddenly taken in, by some abject fear and uncalled for apprehension, beginning sud-denly to doubt, that I was going to be released; thinking that the men were trying to send me stealthily away, under cover of some false pre-text. The very thought made me shudder, stepping back a pace or two as the boat reached the jetty, and I could on no account make bold to enter the launch. The men finding me quite cataleptic as it were and unwilling to enter, began to stare at each other's faces and did not know what to do. Whistle after whistle went on, but I would not move; finding no other go, they had to lift me up and shove me into the boat at last and the ferry left. Such was the consternation raised in my rnind, at the thought of getting foully kidnapped away, that I could not
